Introduction

The meeting of the American Society of Hematology (ASH) is the major annual international meeting, which provides an opportunity for the discussion of critical issues in Hematology. Educational sessions cover state-of-the-art treatment procedures and scientific and poster sessions offer a forum for an enormous number of high quality studies. Information will be presented on promising experimental therapeutics. New strategies and old assumptions will be discussed. Unfortunately not all clinicians and researchers interested in Hematology are able to attend the ASH meeting in the USA. And even those attending cannot always join all sessions of their interest. For that reason we are pleased to announce the 18th Post-ASH Meeting on Friday, January 8, 2016.

The 2015 American Society of Hematology (ASH) Annual Meeting will be held in Orlando, Florida (December 5-8, 2015).
